The Nightwatch

Race

Human

When you enter a civilized settlement you've visited in the past, tell the GM about a criminal that you helped catch last time you were there. The GM will tell you if they're still seeking revenge.

CLOTHES: Rich, Self-made, or Street casual

Elf

Nature is not lawless, but it recognizes different laws than that of man. You may use Throwing Shade to accuse a GM character of transgressions against nature, even if those transgressions are not represented in the laws of civilized society pocketless, but feels and acts like any regular cloak. The material will slowly smolder away if exposed to direct sunlight. If you take the cloak off it falls to the ground, thin as a shadow, and cannot be picked back up.

While wearing this cloak, take +1 ongoing for any roll where you attempt to stay hidden, or to move or act without being

X Caped Crusader

Mounted to a brace on your forearm you have a small, modified crossbow which fires a grappling hook attached to a twenty-foot long rope. The rope is load bearing, allowing you to dangle, climb, or swing from it. You may dislodge the hook from any surface with a quick flick of the

On a 7-9 you cannot choose to reduce your ammo. If you sheath or hide the blade, the light dissipates and you lose all

$(\chi)$ Throwing Shade

When you have dirt on a GM character and publicly accuse them of crimes or misdeeds, roll+CHA. On a hit the GM chooses one:

- Make up a bad excuse to be somewhere else, then flee.
- Get defensive and focus their attention on you.
- Own up to their deviant ways without a hint of remorse.

On a 10+, take +1 forward against them. On a miss, they mock your delusions: take -1 forward against them.

$\chi$ Creature of the Night

Whenever you Take Watch at night, take +1 forward on the roll. While on watch you are Enshaden and difficult to see. On a 10+, it is impossible to get the drop on you.

Warden

When you return to a civilized place where an ally has an Outstanding Warrant, and you make a show of leading that character around as if they are your prisoner, you both roll+CHA and use the best result On a 10+, word has spread both about their capture and your presence as their captor, and everyone believes the situation is under control. On a 7-9, word of your deeds have spread, but the GM chooses a complication:

- The local constabulary will come around to assess the situation for themselves.
- Someone will come asking for recompense for prior damages.
- The town still doesn't want them around, and would prefer you leave quickly.

When you return to a civilized place with a notorious criminal or wrongdoer in your arrest, the town celebrates your victory. In addition to reaping the rewards for their capture, you may Carouse without spending the initial 100 coin.

Dynamic Duo

You've gained a sidekick in the form of a child or young adult. Why are you willing to take them in as your ward and apprentice and let them join you on your adventure. Choose one of the following which describes them best:

- Orphaned and lost, but with great resilience and courage.
   Con: +1. Cha: -1. Int: -2.
   16 max HP. D8 damage. 8 Load.
- Strange, awkward, and possessed with insight and understanding.
   Wis: +1. Str: -1. Cha: -2.
   12 max HP. D6 damage. 6 Load.
- Unwittingly eager and gangly, with genius to match enthusiasm.
   Int: +1. Con: -1. Str: -2.
   10 max HP. D4 damage. 4 Load.
- Ferocious and uncontrollable, yet stalwart and devoted.
   Str: +1. Dex: -1. Wis: -2.
   14 max HP. D10 damage. 10 Load.
- Candid and naive, able to make friends in any situation.
   Cha: +1. Wis. -1. Con: -2.
   8 max HP. D6 damage. 6 Load.

Treat your sidekick as a playable character in your control. They do not choose a playbook, gain experience, or level up.
